What's Coming Up?

It's hard to believe November is already over! We had so many days off but so much fun! We enjoyed exploring our neighborhood trees and the animals that live in them! We learned about the many different kinds of leaves and the various parts of a tree. Stay tuned to find out your classroom's next theme!

From December 4-8, we will be participating in a global movement called Hour of Code. This is our children's first experience with computer science. We will be exploring programmable robots and/or iPad applications. The children love these experiences and are often excited to continue playing with them after the event!

On December 22nd, we will be inviting families in for a holiday celebration before break. Look for more information in your child's backpack as it approaches. We hope you can join us!
